WOMAN AND FASHION

Prose For Formal Occasions.
A dressy gown, not too elaborate, but adaptable for most of the occasions which appear in the life of the average woman, is a necessary adjunct to the wardrobe. A garment very expensive and ornate is always just a little too nice to be worn at most of the small functions enjoyed by the feminine world and is therefore not so satisfactory as the more single toilet.

OF NET AND LACE.

that can be worn without the thought of the amount paid for it obtruding itself.

The gown sketched is a most attractive model and possesses the dainty feminine look which is often lacking in the more elaborate toilets. It is a model that will accentuate a woman's best points, and the wearer will wonder why she is more attractive to the masculine element at least than when arrayed in a fussy overtrimmed garment.

For Street Suits.

Strictly for street suits are stunning diagonals shown, flatter lined off with plaids.

Then there are the herringbone serges in two tones that are very new and attractive. These effects come in browns, plums, grays, greens and a black with colored stripes.

Chevrons, or, rather, Scotch tweeds, are having a decided revival and are used both for the tailored and the motor and walking coats.

Many of the weaves shown are old-fashioned favorites readapted to present styles.

But there are many novelties in the worsteds. One of the most striking shown is a gray and white check overlaid with begonia lines.

A London smoke gray in half inch stripes combined with a paler gray in narrower stripes is another new treatment of a decidedly handsome and immensely smart chevron.

The Rose Hatpin.

The French milliners are setting big artificial roses upon hatpins, so that you trim your hat each time you stick your pin into it. This method of transferring roses from one point to another has become very popular, and the woman who had three red roses upon the right side of her hat yesterday will appear today with the same three roses proudly sticking in the bandeau. It changes the appearance of the hat and is no trouble at all. Moreover, it enables one to suit one's costume more readily than where the roses are set upon the hat band and fast, so that they cannot be changed.

Girl's Spring Costume.

Stripes are going to be very much worn again in the spring, especially in woolen materials. A dress like this model for a young girl would be not only serviceable and smart, but most becoming, with the skirt cut on the bias and the waist in modified mandarin jumper effect.

Industrial Items.

The most modern flour mill in the world has just been opened at Winnipeg and has a capacity of 5,000 barrels daily.

According to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the Bellingham (Wash.) mills have "cut lumber enough to make a twelve inch board walk around the world."

The government entomologists have shown that the cotton growers can be protected from the boll weevil by planting cotton early and by burning the plants in the fall after the harvest, by which many millions of weevils in one stage or another are destroyed.

Train and Track.

Twenty-five thousand employees of the Northwestern have signed a pledge to abstain from the use of intoxicating drinks.

Following a French example, the main line underground electric railways in London are to make the experiment of employing women ticket sellers or "booking clerks."

The Texas courts have rendered an opinion that the Texas railroad commission has no right to order a reduction in sleeping car rates. The order of the commission, made about a year ago, for a reduction in rates was contested by the Pullman company.

The White Lady.

The Bank of England is popularly called the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street." The story is told that in the early part of the last century, when "The Green Man," "The Lady in Black" and other oddities notorious for some peculiarity of dress were well known in the city, the "White Lady of Threadneedle Street" was a daily visitor to the Bank of England.

She was, it is said, the sister to a poor young clerk who had forged the signature to a transfer warrant and who was hanged in 1809. She had been a needleworker for an army contractor and lived with her brother and an old aunt in the city. Her mind became affected at her brother's disgraceful death, and every day at noon she used to cross the rotunda to the pay counter.

Her one unvarying question was, "Is my brother, Mr. Frederick, here today?" The invariable answer was, "No, miss, not today."

She seldom remained above five minutes, and her last words always were: "Give my love to him when he returns. I will call tomorrow."—Youth's Companion.

Vienna Barbers.

The Barbers and Wigmakers' union in Vienna is very strict in its examination before it will admit any new members to the society. Only fully competent persons are allowed to practice and to prove their capabilities must first show that they thoroughly understand the disinfection of razors, brushes, etc., used in their craft and also how to keep the razors sharp and use them to the best advantage.

"Your hawkweed," remarked the visiting foreigner, "it sees so strange." "Why so, count?"

"When a man spend all his money, one man say he's all in. Another man when he has no money say he's all out. I no understand."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Pa, what happens when railroad cars are telescoped?" "I suppose the passengers see stars."—London Fun.

Do You Know a Good Thing When You See It?

If so, read the following proposition?

A considerable investment in Marion Real Estate is the safest and surest protection. I have some propositions that I am going to offer, that will net you 6% on the investment, and I believe there are some people who would invest where they can make 5% net. I would like to have parties with surplus money to call at my office and I will make it clear to them that what I say is correct.

As an Investment.

Some of the propositions I have to offer ought to appeal to farmers, as well as to the people of Marion, who have surplus money that is not drawing them any interest.

Buy Real Estate.

If you are lucky enough to own a home, and you have money to spare, why not invest it in Real Estate which is absolutely the surest and safest investment on earth, and brings you the BEST Income.

Don't invest your money in "Get Rich Quick" schemes, but invest it where you have control of it yourself. People who invested in real estate in Marion along in 1901 and 1902 and up until the last few months have generally made handsome profits, and at the present time there is a depreciation in the value of Marion real estate, which I think is only temporary, and it is an elegant time to make conservative investments. If this will interest you I would be glad to have you call at my office, Room No. 4, old Masonic Block, and we will talk it over.
